It has a 2 inch stroke, which makes it a Champion R10D pump. The R15B pump has a 3 inch stroke. Cylinder bores are the same on each, and they look identical on the outside. Bottom line, the R10D pump I have is probably pumping close to its normal capacity, according to some Champion pump data I have found. Probably a little too late to take it back to the fellow who sold it to me, and let him ...
