A local man Pato Dooley, headed for the States, dubs forty-year-old Maureen the beauty queen of Leenane which is their tiny Irish village in Connemara. McDonagh's characters often start with verbal nastiness and graduate to physical cruelty with torture, blood and gore. He's carved out a niche for himself that can cause his audiences to cringe and cover at the lengths he'll go to finish off a character or two. There may be bloody consequences. A McDonagh character must learn to duck to fend ...

The Beauty Queen of Leenane is my favorite Martin McDonagh play because I saw it in previews at the Atlantic Theater Co. before it moved to Broadway to eventually win the Tony Award for Best play in 1998. McDonagh is a natural playwright who brings out dark deep secrets of the characters to life on the page and on stage. His dialogue chisels away the outer layers down to the bones.
